Art Unit: 3739

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 12, the term "a diameter of preferably 400 microns" is unclear as the range of diameters intended to be encompassed is unclear. For the purpose of examination, this phrase will be read as "a diameter of about 400 microns".

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Farley et al in combination with Del Giglio. Farley et al teach a method of treating venous varicosities by threading a catheter through the venous system and confirming the position thereof with ultrasound, fluoroscopy, or angioscopy. Del Giglio teaches precise placement of an optical fiber, which can be 400 microns in diameter with a bare tip that is extended 1 cm beyond the tip of the introducer, and applying laser pulses. It would have been obvious to the artisan or ordinary skill to employ the ablation method of Del Giglio in the method of Farley et al, since laser ablation is equivalent to the electroablation of Farley et al or to employ the positioning technique of Farley et al in the method of Del Giglio, since this would allow treatment of sites not close to the surface of the skin, and in either case to employ a diode laser, since this is not critical and produces no unexpected result; to employ a wavelength of 980 nm, since this is absorbed more highly by blood than water, and will confine the treatment of the blood vessel, official notice of which is hereby taken, and produces no unexpected result; to employ echo color Doppler ultrasound for visualization, since this particular type of ultrasound provides no unexpected result over the ultrasound suggested by Farley et al; and to perform angiography after the laser has been applied to assure closure of the vessel, since this is commonly done in angioplastic procedures, official notice of which is hereby taken, thus producing a method such as claimed.
